Junior Olympic Plan Promise Gala Event

When the 22 playgrounds of Jefferson County gather for the gigantic Junior Olympic Meet to be sponsored by the Jefferson County Playground and Recreation Board next month, the eyes of Kentucky will be focused on the progressive community of Falmale.

Falmale, nestled in the heart of the new county forest area, is to be the location of the giant event according to an announcement from the office of the county recreation board.

Charlie Vetterlin and Ray Baer met with the Falmale Civic Club this week and presented the project.

E. O. Haus, J. Appleby and W. Blake were quick to point out to the club the wonderful opportunity being offered the community. The other members present, Ed Toebbs, Ed Johnson, Henry Williams, Frank Black, Jr., Mr. Schultz, Ray Maaden, Mr. Buckner, Lin Pauley, Mr. Baer and Mr. Andrews, waxed enthusiastically immediately.

Falmale definitely wanted the Jefferson County Playground and Recreation Board to award the Olympics to that location.

The Civic Club went on record as pledging the members to lots of hard, worthwhile work in re-

Okolona and Buechel Get Baseball Wins

Camp Taylor dropped its first game of the Jefferson County Playground and Recreation Board's Sunday Baseball League, losing to Okolona in a 13-inning ball game by a score of 8 to 5.

Lloyd Redman's Okolona Nine, although winning the game, were played to a standstill by Martin Metcalf's Camp Taylor boys for 12 innings.

In the second game of the league played Sunday, Buechel triumphed over Jeffersontown by a score of 11 to 2. This win placed Buechel in a tie with Okolona for third place in the league standing.

Midtown retained first place in the league receiving a 9 to 0 forfeit from Falmale.

According to the new arrangement the Jefferson County Playground and Recreation Board's Sunday Baseball League will now function each Sunday.

Jeffersontown Horse Show Opens Third Annual Display Saturday

Capacity Crowd Expected To View Blooded Aristocrats of the Saddle Ring As Scores of Horses and Riders Vie For Trophies.

The Third Annual Horse Show sponsored by the Jeffersontown Area Recreation Board Saturday and Sunday, June 22-23, promises to be the greatest from every standpoint, according to the mutual interest displayed by exhibitors and the general public.

Members of the horse show committee, said the show is a two-day event this year instead of the previous one-day affairs.

Members from all parts of Kentucky and Indiana will compete in 27 classes and the winners in 13 classes will receive $750 in cash awards in addition to handsome trophies and ribbons which are prizes in all classes.

"Members of the Horse Show Committee," said Frenz, "have worked hard to get this show together. For the past few weeks they have worked constantly ironing out every detail to make the 1946 display the most interesting and successful from the standpoint of both spectator and exhibitor."

"Facilities will be devoted to the purchase of recreation equipment for the Jeffersontown playground. Any surplus above current needs will be used as a nest egg for the new recreation buildings.

Pony classes for the display of horsemanship of entrants of 6 to 14 years of age are open to boys and girls who may register 30 minutes before the event without entrance fees.

Classes for the display of horsemanship of entrants of 6 to 14 years of age are open to boys and girls who may register 30 minutes before the event without entrance fees.

The community has always lovingly supported the efforts of the Jeffersontown Area Recreation Board in offering these events and we expect the same cooperation Saturday and Sunday with a heavy attendance to mark this year an outstanding success.

"Good seats are still available and can be procured at Newkirk's Drug Store in Jeffersonville or at the Jeffersontown Recreation Board office in the Jeffersontown Recreation building."

In addition to the regular three- and five-gaited contests the horse show program calls for a number of events that will enliven each

County Drainage Work Depends on Equipment

County road and other construction is suffering from the confusion prevailing in government departments charged with the distribution of surplus equipment.

In Jefferson County, one of the most costly delays is involved in the inability of the county to purchase two drag lines intended mainly for use in clearing the Pond Creek basin under the direction of the local soil conservation district.

This project affects more than 40,000 acres in Jefferson County says county road engineers, E. W. Roberts, and should have been started early this spring.

"We began our efforts to purchase these drag lines last winter," says Roberts, "when government groups had first priorities. We were unsuccessful. At the first of this year, veterans were given first priorities on equipment which included trucks, bulldozers, graders, mowing machines, tractors, oil distributors and other pieces of machinery that the county needs. This encouraged us to believe that this equipment would be made available by us."

"However, regardless of letters, telegrams, and visits to government departments in a continuous stream we have been unable to secure any of the equipment needed from any source except one new truck tractor that we secured through a private dealer at a saving of $1,500 from the list price. This was a lucky break."

"That one truck tractor has little bearing on the county's principal need which is the two drag lines to hurry the work on Pond Creek."

The City of Louisville has been able to secure one drag line, but outside of that purchase the county officials cannot find a source of equipment. The county, a veteran or government agency that has secured another.

There are rumors that the county, private manipulators of surplus equipment are securing such surplus equipment for their own plus stockpiles and that in other instances millions of dollars worth

Citizens Demand Better Transportation: Improved School Methods; Road Care; Safeguards Against Cheap Subdivisions.

That the general public of Jefferson County has placed hope and confidence in the Good Government Committee appointed by County Judge Horace M. Barker is strongly indicated by the flood of requests, reminders and suggestions that have poured in to the committee on various phases of county welfare.

Before the meeting of the Good Government Committee, held last Tuesday evening at the Fiscal Court Building, volunteer communications, answers to general inquiries and written, personal and telephone contacts had established the fact that hundreds of county residents are studying local questions of better county improvements, better schools, better roads, better transportation and better law enforcement.

These public-interest evidences of interest in county development came from residents of every section of the county and Chairman Carl A. Hummel, of the committee, was pleased to note that most of the citizens spoke not of single communities but of problems that affected the entire county to court basketball at Manual.

"It is encouraging," said Chairman Hummel, "to know that Jefferson County residents are beginning to think in the terms of the welfare of the entire county and not of their own communities."

A brief study of the opinions offered by county residents proves that county schools, law enforcement, county transportation and county roads are the principal matters on the general county mind.

"Bus lines are needed on numerous roads in the county," said a citizen of Coral Ridge. "The county needs not only new water lines, but the improvement of the old county sewer system. Raise county standards. Standards should be cleaned and some at-tion given the ditches on Bee Lick Road between Falmale and Mitchell Hill.

"Attention to roads, rapid expansion of the county fire department, early work on the flood wall," is the advice of another Coral Ridge resident.

The Good Government Committee should act as a spur to county community clubs that only TALK TALK TALK—without ACTION. The committee of a Strathmore resident. This writer believes in better playgrounds, better schools, better roads, more recreation development and more intelligence in county planning.

A resident of the Jeffersontown area believes that the Louisville Railway Company should be approached for the question of providing extended county bus lines, pointing out that an operation of an outside belt line connecting the extreme sections of Jefferson County with several highway routes into Louisville would be in the opinion heavily patronized.

"We have put up with the insolence of small bus line operators too long," is this writer's final shot.

A bus line on the Brownsboro Road between Springdale and Louisville from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. in the morning until 8 o'clock in the evening is recommended. Better water distribution and lower county water rates. Start now on a county sewer system. Raise county standards. Standards should be cleaned and some at-

Good Govern'm't Group Holds Regular Session

At a session of the Jefferson County Good Government Committee, held Tuesday evening at Nicholson Hotel, Fern Creek, an announcement was made that the regular meeting of the advisory body, on August 20, reports would be expected from all subcommittees on the status of that division of county affairs with which they are severally concerned.

The various items are to be taken up in detail, looking toward a closer checkup on such matters as shall merit the committee's attention, according to the general chairman.

The detailed report was heard from the subcommittee on projects, the chairman, Leo E. Schuler, put before the advisory group the findings which were the result of an exhaustive study of the county completed of public opinion concerning the proposed county foodways.

Following community hearings in the affected area, Schuler and his associates, who include Henry Nuffer, Rev. J. W. Avera, and John G. Rasmussen, concluded that the residents were preponderantly in accord with the idea of building a foodway.

Mr. Bryant, chairman of the subcommittee on education, said he and his associates propose to make an investigation into the status of the county schools and attempt to ascertain when bus operators will be in position to adequately meet these needs.

a seriously thoughtful mood on the part of those responsible for the care of dependent children.

To expose those unfortunate children, who are destined to become public wards, to an environment as bad, or probably much worse, than that from which misfortunes of private home life had uprooted them, is a crime against society. County Judge Horace Barker, in dedicating Sunshine Lodge Sunday afternoon, said that the Children's Center in Louisville had long since become a dumping ground for helpless young children, indicating that the center is a pretext of a public living quarters for different types of unfortunate children, congested and otherwise inadequate in its facilities for providing proper care of its wards of tender years. Particularly are the conditions unfavorable to development of the non-delinquent type.

It is such that so we understand—are to be placed here at Sunshine Lodge. Very young children—infants, up to 12 years—whose private home life has been broken up, temporarily it may be, should find at the Lodge a rendezvous with hope and a measure of care and contentment conducive to development of life and character.

So it is that a potentially serviceable building, otherwise unoccupied, is to be used for the high purpose of building human life and character, thus contributing inestimable value to the social order of our county and state.

Build several county swimming pools. More fire protection and better buses and better bus services. These suggestions occur frequently.

"In fact," says a county resident, "that county planning and zoning be done with a view of protecting county properties and county communities. Destroy the hopes of those parasites who would blast the beauty of the county with subdivisions that are only intended to line the pockets of promoters."

"I am a veteran," says another, "and I need a home, but not in a poorly-planned community. Let the Good Government Committee guard future building. Let's not have anything to do with proposals that profess to be offered as an aid to the veterans but hide a wolfish desire to exploit the veteran's emergent need of a home."

SUNDAY SPEAKER

R. G. LeTourneau

R. G. LeTourneau, "God's Business Man," is to be heard Sunday afternoon at a Louisville and Jefferson County mass meeting in the Memorial Auditorium. The meeting scheduled for 3 o'clock.

Mr. LeTourneau is one of America's leading industrialists and manufacturers. He says, "For any success I have had, I give God the glory."

Camp Taylor Leader Puts Heart In Work

When the roll is called up yonder Camp Taylor's Martin Metcalf should be able to claim recognition for the work he is doing for youngsters.

An ardent baseball fan, a lover of sports and the boys who play it, Martin is not a rich man. In fact, right now Martin could use a sizeable sum of Uncle Sam's green backs for the hospital bill occasioned by the presence of his son, Jimmie, at St. Mary and Elizabeth's Hospital for an appendectomy.

In spite of all of this Martin is still for the kids of Camp Taylor to the extent that he is willing to go down in his pocket to see that they get to play baseball. Hired by the Jefferson County Playground and Recreation Board to conduct four baseball clinics at Camp Taylor for youngsters, Martin refused his check for $16 insisting that he would rather give the equivalent in baseball bats for his boys.

He was accommodated. As he walked out of the recreation office several dignitaries were heard to remark that here, indeed, was an unsung hero who was entitled to a great reward from somebody some day. However, Camp Taylor knows that Martin Metcalf is daily rewarded richly by his baseball players, who know his tremendous interest in them by their appreciation of his work.

New Farm Store Open In Louisville

The Dixie Farm Store, recently opened at 720-722 West Jefferson Street in Louisville by H. M. Jacobs, long associated with the poultry industry, has a wide acquaintance among those who will be in the market for the up-to-date and modern farm equipment that will be featured in the new store.

Earn and reared on a large farm, Jacobs is well qualified to determine the needs of the farm trade and to aid with farm problems. Four years of agricultural study, ten years experience in the tractor and farm equipment business, plus years of association with the poultry industry in Kentucky and Indiana gives Jacobs an enviable background in his new venture.

A farm service department that will aid farmers with their poultry and other farm problems is just one of the special features the Dixie Farm Store will offer patrons.

The firm will carry the Conde line of milkers and are expecting early shipments of radios, refrigerators and farm freezers.

"Come in and renew acquaintance," is Jacobs' cordial invitation to his friends. "Let's talk over better farming," he says. Evelyn, who is interested in agriculture in Jefferson County.

Fincastle Unites To Please Children

Nestling in a cool valley out on Poplar Level Road, just a good baseball throw from Camp Taylor, is beautiful Fincastle, a recreational heaven for county youngsters.

Charlie Vettiner, assistant supervisor of the Jefferson County Playground and Recreation Board, met with the Fincastle Recreation Committee last night and found out these amazing facts.

Out there on Poplar Level Road Ed Willis, recreation chairman; Thomas Vaughn and Evelyn Schmitt pointed out that the most important project in the beautiful housing project of Fincastle was its boys and girls.

Dorothy Metcalf, president of the Women's Club; William West, Boy Scout leader, and Harry Graham, president of the Men's Club, waxed enthusiastic as they pointed with pride to a recreation room for games, another for dancing and besides a baseball and softball field there were facilities to take care of youngsters from the crawling age to the century mark.

Mrs. R. J. Boone, Mrs. Wessel Peenie, Mrs. C. C. Parish and Mrs. Ernest Hargrove displayed a weekly publication entitled Fincastle Community Activities, which is supervised by that bundle of human energy, Evelyn Schmitt, who is also recreation treasurer.

The small news bulletin carries such items as announcements of Boy and Girl Scout meetings, games to be played in the Jefferson County Playground and Recreation Board's baseball, volleyball and softball leagues as well as an announcement of a dance being sponsored by the recreation committee on June 22 at Fincastle to raise further funds to make sure Fincastle kids have every recreation device money can buy.

Surplus Jeeps

Veterans who survive the avalanche of paperwork necessary to buy a surplus jeep are apt to wind up with a ticket five minutes after they drive off in their new purchase. Because no provisions have been made as yet by the War Assets Corporation to give prospective buyers information necessary to obtain license tags before collecting the jeep, few get home without a run-in with the law.

It is advisable for jeep buyers to get, in advance of collecting the purchase, all details necessary to buy a license tag so that he can take along the tag when calling for the jeep. Warning, do not buy tags until you know definitely that a vehicle has been sold to you.

Unemployment

Veterans who take temporary jobs retain their rights to unemployment allowances after they are released. Veterans are not required to claim unemployment payments immediately after their discharge from service in order to protect their rights to such benefits.

The Purple Heart

By War Department General Orders No. 3, dated February 22, 1932, the Purple Heart, established by Gen. George Washington at Newburgh, August 7, 1782, during the Revolutionary War, was revived out of respect to his memory and military achievements.

Under the regulations governing the award of the Purple Heart for acts of services performed prior to February 22, 1932, the award is confined to those persons who, as members of the Army, were awarded the Meritorious Services Citation Certificates by the Commander-in-Chief, American Expeditionary Forces, or who were wounded in action under conditions which entitled them to wear a wound chevron.

No blank form of application is required for this decoration. However, individual application is required over the signature of the veteran.

The application should be addressed to the Adjutant General, War Department, Washington, D. C., and should recite the reason upon which the decoration is claimed and should show the exact name under which service was rendered, together with the rank, serial number, and organization of the applicant at that time.

Okolona Home Ec. Girls Carry Summer Projects

Okolona home economics girls have been busy at home this last month trying out some of the things that were taught them by their instructor, Mrs. Thelma Farmer.

Five of the girls are carrying on projects to improve the appearance of their own rooms; one girl is covering a studio couch for the living room. Planning a wardrobe, making summer dresses, remodeling, or care of clothing were chosen by 50 of the girls.

Seven girls are working on beautifying the exterior of their homes. Three of the girls are working on food projects and 13 are taking money management projects as they have jobs this summer.

These girls met at Fontaine Ferry Park last Thursday and reported on the progress of their projects. After the report, the girls held an F.H.A. meeting jointly with the Fern Creek Chapter. Reports were given on the Richmond F.H.A. State meeting and installation was held for the new officers of Okolona and Fern Creek F.H.A. Chapter.

The officers for Okolona are Martha Hatter, Joanne Allen, Rita Woodbridge, Nancy Hawkins, Delores Sansom, Doris Hall, Jackie Adams and Joyce Firkins. Officers for Fern Creek are Mildred Wise, Patty Ann Mason, Ethel Rose Leathers, Gilda Tinsley, Georgia Tobbe and Catherine Smith.

practice of home-meat production. In other words he would have about every farmer raise a few hogs, a calf or two, some lambs and a lot of chickens for his own table.

"The farmer who does this will have the satisfaction of having meat on the table every day, while town people may be finding it difficult to buy any meat at all," said Sellards.

Since pork is such a good food, and can be made into so many kinds of products, and cures so well, Sellards puts first emphasis on more hogs for home-meat supplies. While grain is desirable to feed hogs, they can be raised on a variety of feeds, including alfalfa and clover, milk, buttermilk and waste scraps from the kitchen. Hogs allowed to run about the place may pick up a large part of their living, Sellards pointed out.

It was suggested that farmers form meat rings to provide a supply of fresh meat. Each member of a ring furnishes a fat animal to be slaughtered at a time mutually agreeable to all, and the carcass divided among all members.

Whatever the method used to provide more home meat, Sellards believes that farmers as well as many families in small towns might well consider producing more of their own meat just at this time.

Suggests Farmers Provide More Meat For Own Families

With meat harder to get every day, the suggestion that farmers try to produce a better supply for their own tables, comes from Grady Sellards of the Kentucky College of Agriculture and Home Economics.

Just at this time of food scarcity, Sellards said more farmers should go back to the old-time

UP TO HIM!

The Kentucky brewing industry's program of Self-Regulation is just what the words imply. Every beer retailer is required to conduct his business in strict accord with the public welfare and with the high standards of the industry itself.

Any failure to do so willingly and without reserve will not be tolerated.

As a result, the vast majority of retailers in Kentucky are good business men who realize that their welfare depends on how they serve those in the communities in which they live.

The GARDEN

By
JOHN S. GARDNER

SECOND GARDENS

Late cabbage is a second garden possibility, but not many gardeners succeed with it. One reason is that the cabbage worm has multiplied many times since spring, but rotenone will stop it. Another reason may be the disease, yellows, not severe enough to show in the spring when soil moisture is abundant, but more serious during the dry season.

Many gardeners have learned that they can grow late cabbage successfully by using the disease-resistant sort, Wisconsin All Seasons, sowing two or three seeds in a hill, then thinning to one seedling where the heads are to stand. In this way the hazard of hot and dry transplanting is removed.

Another hazard at this time is the flea beetle, but prompt spraying or dusting with rotenone removes it. Sowing time is normally mid-June, but even July 15 is not too late if these precautions are taken.

Where the hills are to be made a hole large enough to hold a pint of water. After the water has settled, fill again with water, and when it has settled, fill with sifted soil. Sow the seed and cover it with a half-inch of sifted soil, then shade with a bit of shingle or a cone of newspaper until the seedlings emerge.

The last second garden crop of any importance is beets, replacing the early ones which become woody and unpalatable by fall. Sowing time is late June.

The larger beets can be stored in boxes of earth in a cellar or buried in pits, and the smaller ones canned. Turnip-shaped sorts are best, and of these Detroit Dark Red is the most popular. Sometimes the seedlings need a bit of protection, such as rotenone and cryolite dust or spray, against the flea beetle.

sold for $350. Checks in the following amounts were received from the magistrates as follows: First District, $872.80; Second District, $561.04, and Third District, $451.50.

Attorney Ewing L. Hardy, representing C. E. McNeal of Plainview Drive, appeared before the Court to protest the change of the name to Plainview Drive from Hurstbourne Lane. The matter was referred to County Attorney Steinfeld.

Clarence Beck, a resident of Blue Lick Road and Preston Highway, appeared to protest the lack of rip-rap on the walls of the county ditch in front of his home, which resulted in the periodic caving in and filling of the ditch to the detriment of the proper run-off. The matter was referred to county Road Engineer RoBards.

It was decided by the Court to construct a spur track on the Southern Railroad line at the County Yard in the Second District on Newberg Road and also to arrange for the storage of coal which could be bought in carload lots for county use and thus save some four or five thousand dollars a year.

A letter signed by Floyd E. Korb on Spring Hill Road and Meridian Avenue, complained about a bad drainage condition in a ditch on private property near his home which ditch needs to be used to take off sewage waste. Mr. Korb has been told several times in the past that the county has no jurisdiction and he was referred to the new St. Matthews Sewer District Commissioners for a solution of his trouble.

County Attorney Steinfeld reported that Leo Wolfort of the Citizens Bank has indicated that all money the county needs will be lent on a three year basis for the purchase of the automobiles, trucks, fire equipment, road equipment, etc., at interest of about three per cent. This was mighty good news to the other court members because of the serious difficulties encountered trying to balance the budget. Mr. Steinfeld was ordered to work with Mr. Wolfort to arrange all the necessary legal papers in the matter.

The new depository for county funds (the Lincoln Bank and Trust Company), doesn't want to put up $200,000 in Government security as surety for county funds even though the other large banks in Louisville have done this for years as a gesture of goodwill and performance. The county always has in the neighborhood of one million dollars on hand and it was felt that $200,000 was small enough guarantee even though there was no State statute in setting this up. It was decided that even though the Lincoln Bank and Trust Company was the next on the list in the rotating arrangement, the next bank would be taken as the depository for 1946-7, who would subscribe to the idea of putting up the guarantee.

The county patrolman who was injured recently in the automobile mishap will be kept on the payroll while he is in the hospital, but he must refund his compensation money to the county. Mr. Alex Johnson, representing the insurance company, suggested this manner of handling the situation to reduce the county's liability cost.

Also a policy on all the new voting machines will be taken to cover all types of possible damage to these machines, whether while in storage, in transit, or in use. Court adjourned at 3 o'clock.

At least 500 farmers in Monroe County will use a ton of fertilizer to the acre on tobacco this year, and a number will use 3,000 pounds.
